CHAPTER 3

TOO late, Sheila remembered the Parker House was a favorite resort of people in the Boston political game. She was acutely conscious of how near she was to playing handies across the table with Brad. Jerry wouldn't be overwhelmed with delight about that.

As gracefully as she could, she withdrew the hand and flashed Jerry a smile which was meant to say, "Hello, there. Come over to the table and I'll explain."

Apparently, though, it wasn't Attorney Gerald O'Donnors' way for understanding the smile language. His heavy black brows beamed a little closer together and, after giving Sheila the slightest of nods, he turned back to his companion.

"Well!" said Sheila Kelly. "For goodness sake! Brad eyed her questioningly over his brandy and soda. "Something wrong?"

Supreme Court Justice Sutherland Resigns

Reaches 75; Will Retire Jan. 18

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Associate Justice George Sutherland, 75, today resigned from the Supreme Court.

He filed January 18 as the last day of his term, the longest known as one of the most conservative justices on the bench. Justice Sutherland follows the precedent of Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter, and thus creates a second vacancy on the high court which President Roosevelt will fill.

CITES AILMENT
The reason for Justice Sutherland's retirement was given as his age and the recognition of a stomach ailment from which he has intermittently suffered for years.

He retires under the Sumner retirement act, on full pay of $20,000 a year. Like Van Devanter, he will be subject to call in duty in circuit or district courts.

LETTER TO PRESIDENT
Justice Sutherland's letter to President Roosevelt follows:

"My Dear Mr. President:
"Having reached the age of more than 75 years, and having held my commission as associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and served in that court for 15 years, and thus being eligible for retirement under the Sumner act of March 1, 1915, entitled 'An act to provide for the retirement of justices of the Supreme Court,' I desire to avail myself of this right, privileges and judicial service specified in that act, and to that end I hereby retire from regular active service on the bench, this retirement to be effective on and after January, 1938."

Budget Sets '39 Deficit At Billion

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Necessity for strengthening the national defense and providing relief in the face of declining revenues will result in a $949,600,000 federal deficit for the 1939 fiscal year, President Roosevelt told Congress today in his annual budget message.

Forced by the current business recession to revise downward the government's revenue estimates, Roosevelt nevertheless moved to execute his promise "not to let the people down" by calling for a new fiscal year which starts July 1.

The President emphasized, however, if the need arises he will ask Congress for more. He said this applies also to the present fiscal year, although no additional relief money was asked for this period.

BUDGET SUMMARIZED

Summarized the President's budget statement are:

1.—Revenue for the next fiscal year will total $2,818,000,000, a decrease of $40,000,000 from the present fiscal year.

2.—Expenditures, exclusive of retirement, will total $3,867,600,000, a decrease of $20,000,000 from the present fiscal year.

3.—National defense appropriations will total $901,300,000, an increase of $43,300,000. Later the President may ask for additional funds to construct several extra naval vessels.

4.—Relief expenditures for the next fiscal year will total roughly $1,126,300,000, a decrease of $441,500,000 from the present fiscal year.

ESTIMATE RISES

5.—The deficit estimate for the next fiscal year, which ends June 30, has been raised from $800,000,000 to $949,600,000.

Walker threw himself from a balcony to a cement floor.

Gov. Hurley Urges War On Crime

Asks Legislature to End Racketeering In State

With a ringing call for stronger legislation in the cracking down on crime and racketeering, Governor Hurley gave his annual message today at the opening of the 135th Massachusetts Legislature.

He urged immediate passage of legislation giving the attorney general more power, if the challenge of the gangster and criminal is to be met.

Originally, the governor had in mind the recent gangster slaying of David J. "Boss" Breen in Boston and Louis Gaeta in Revere.

The governor also urged in his message, delivered in both branches at noon, the following:

Reorganization of the state department of mental diseases.

Increased development of the Port of Boston.

Stricter automobile law enforcement and a highway safety campaign.

Constructive efforts in the matters of taxation and economy of public expenditures.

Legislation for the retirement or purchase, at a fair value, of the outstanding common stock of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, into the Boston Metropolitan District.

Clear cooperation among relief agencies.

Continuation of the Massachusetts State Police.

Du Pont Asks Tax Rebates

Father of Franklin's Wife Says U. S. Erred

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Eugene DuPont, Ohio Steel Road Greenville, Del., father-in-law of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., asked today that the Treasury tax assessors be sent to his home in Delaware to review a Treasury tax assessment of $29,000 for the years 1935 through 1937.

DuPont contended the government had erred by including in its taxable income the income and profits of five separate trusts he had created for his four children with the Equitable Trust Company of Delaware.

The income from these trusts, he said, went to his children, not to him. DuPont's petition said:

"Our trust was created in 1909 in favor of Almore DuPont, while the others were set up in 1927 in favor of Ethel DuPont, now Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Almore, Nicholas DuPont, and Eugene du Pont, Jr."

The government, in levying the assessment, contended income of trusts created for minor children, and payable to the trustee, to be included for their support, was taxable to the grantor.

Eyewitness Tells Of Revere Murder

By JAMES J. DELANEY Copyright, 1938, by Boston Evening American

From the lips of an eyewitness to the sidewalk slaying of Louis Gaeta, Revere racketeer, the Boston Evening American was told today, exclusively, details of the murder which started the sweeping probe of Revere racket.

Since the under-sized racketman was dropped with a fusillade of bullets in front of his cafe in Shirley avenue, Revere, this pretty waitress, a girl traveling as a saleswoman and with no racket connections, has been closely guarded by authorities.

She is Miss Elizabeth Ruth Dalton, brunette with gray-blue eyes, about five feet nine inches tall and 28 years old.

But since the Gaeta slaying, none but police, prosecuting authorities and a few close friends whom she insisted upon having as secret visitors, have been allowed to see her.

But the Boston Evening American representative saw her and talked with her at length.

It is an EXCLUSIVE story!

Extraordinary efforts have been made by all authorities concerned to keep Miss Dalton's story from the press and the public and to do this they have kept her installed in a Back Bay hotel, under heavy guard.

They are holding her as a material witness while they search for James F. Preston of East Boston, alleged lieutenant of a North End racket "king," for whom there is a warrant out, charging Preston with murder.

Authorities have even warned Betty Dalton in a cloak of anonymity—but the Evening American found out her name, and then found her.

And when the Evening American representative talked with her and won her confidence, she told all.

She was within a dozen feet of the shooting. She

Pertinent Points in Roosevelt's Budget Message to Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Pertinent phrases from President Roosevelt's budget message to Congress:

Due to world conditions over which this nation has no control, I may find it necessary to request additional appropriations for national defense.

The economic situation may not improve—and if it does not, I expect the approval of Congress and the public for additional appropriations if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need.

The most important fact of this budget is the reduction of $539,000,000 in the estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1939. They amount to $6,869,000,000, compared with estimated expenditures during the current fiscal year of 1938 of $7,408,000,000.

The net deficit for the fiscal year 1939 is $949,606,000, or $138,523,600 less than the deficit for the current fiscal year. The gross public debt on June 30, 1939, is estimated at $38,528,252,918.

Deficit of Billion Predicted for '39

to $18,150,000 because of the budget revision.

6—The deficit will be financed through social security and other trust funds and not through public borrowing.

7—Expenditures for new highways, new rivers and harbor projects, new public buildings, new irrigation projects and other new public works will be reduced sharply.

Roosevelt warned Congress that if business fails to improve, and if we should become more pronounced, he will be forced to ask for more funds for relief and armaments.

"The most important fact of this budget is the reduction of $539,000,000 in the estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1939," he asserted.

8—The future is uncertain. "It is fair to say that this estimated reduction may, by force of circumstances, become smaller, because of future events which today cannot definitely be foretold."

"I refer specifically to the possibility that, due to world conditions over which this nation has no control, I may find it necessary to request additional appropriations for national defense."

"Furthermore, the economic situation may not improve—and if it does not, I expect the approval of Congress and the public for additional appropriations, if they become necessary to save thousands of American families from dire need."

9—The revenue estimates for the next fiscal year, the President explained, are predicated on the assumption that business will recover to some extent.

10—The revenue for the fiscal year 1939 would be greater than the expected revenues for 1938, and that with a reduction in the cost of relief, the total expenditures for 1939 would greatly decline," he said.

"That was the basis for our expectation of a balanced budget in the fiscal year 1939.

"The recent recession in business has changed that outlook. We hope the calendar year 1938 will bring an improvement in business conditions and therefore in tax receipts."

The Treasury, leaning to the conservative side, predicts some improvement over the present level, but does not assume in its figures that business in the calendar year 1938 will reach as high a level as in the calendar year 1937.

Economies in government outlays next year will be effected principally in construction of public works, such as buildings, roads etc.

11—While efforts have been made to reduce the expenditures for the regular government departments, a saving of only $67,000,000 will be accomplished in this category.

Roosevelt observed that construction of buildings, roads, dams and projects of that type do not provide as much work as other methods of taking care of the unemployed.

Accordingly he called for a saving of $140,000,000 in the appropriation for public highways, bridges, dams and projects of that type do not provide as much work as other methods of taking care of the unemployed.

For public works as a whole were reduced from $713,000,000 to $573,000,000.

12—The regular recommendations were attached to the budget message by the President.

13—The first would give him the power to veto individual portions of an appropriation bill. At present the executive must veto the entire bill if he is dissatisfied with any of its portions. Roosevelt left it up to Congress to determine if he can be granted that power by legislation, or if a constitutional amendment is necessary.

The second would permit the President to direct the Federal Corporation to issue securities to raise funds with which to make loans on commodity loans. At present, the corporation gets the money from the RFC.

14—The third would give him the power to direct the Federal Corporation to issue securities to raise funds with which to make loans on commodity loans. At present, the corporation gets the money from the RFC.

Each Roosevelt Guess Bigger

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt's estimate today of a $539,000,000 deficit for the current fiscal year was his fourth guess. Each time the figure grew bigger.

A year ago he estimated the budget would be balanced "from a layman's standpoint," with a net surplus of $57,000,000. In April, he estimated a deficit of $140,000,000. The jump today to $539,000,000 last October.

Each time the bigger figure was caused chiefly by lowered estimates of revenue.

U. S. to Spend 19 Million Day

New Budget Calls for $13,450 a Minute

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The budget which President Roosevelt sent to Congress today called for the expenditure of $13,450 a minute in the next fiscal year.

On a daily basis, here are comparative figures:

Average spent last month—$209,966 a day.

Average estimated next month—$127,710 a day.

Average estimated for the 1939 fiscal year—$19,367,000 a day.

Tax-Free Homes. Mississippi Plan

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 5 (AP)—Governor Alfred White asked the legislature today to find the means to lift all taxes from homes in Mississippi. Discarding his program he said a joint session, he said a constitutional amendment might be necessary to relieve thousands of local taxes, but said he believed the people would "overwhelmingly" say "no" to such an amendment.

A list of abuses in business and banking were stated and budget was secured of government corporations, except for those who produce these abuses—described as 8 small numbers.

There was a terse renewal of the recommendation for governmental reorganization.

Those who have criticized the farm policy as "one of the worst" in the world, who have attacked Mr. Jackson some on business, and apparently, those who have criticized the Labor Relations board, came in for charges of "willful dereliction" or "derogation" that will not long develop.

There was a charge of "derogation" that will not long develop. There was a charge of "derogation" that will not long develop.

The only new major element was the emphasis on the need for new industrial acts. Stated as the President asked him, the abuses in the industrial field, which I don't know how you can get out of the industrial field, from one state to another.

But this was a speech of generalities. With all his knowledge of the subject, I don't see how the President himself could approve the present impossible wages-and-hours bill, and he didn't discuss it.

Gen. Johnson Says: Roosevelt Clear On Arms Warning

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—The President's message was one of the most comprehensive he has delivered. It said little that was new but was a clarification of much that has been misty.

There was a clear warning of an armament program based on dangers abroad. The budget is to remain at seven billions. If there is to be a balance, it is to be through rising national income returning more revenue at existing tax rates—and income in new finding.

Changes in undistributed profits and capital gains taxes are to be made to correct "handicaps" particularly to small business men. Something much more is needed.

The agricultural policy remains a fascist control over cropage, coupled with Mr. Wallace's ever-guaranty.

The labor policy as to collective bargaining, remains the same with some little scaling of labor for disunion and a plea for security salaries on an annual basis instead of high hourly rates.

A strong plea for a floor under wages and a ceiling over hours was coupled with a declaration for regional differentials and a suggestion that no change be made too drastic or too hastily.

Congress to Get Message on Big Navy

Program to August 18 Ships Listed in Regular Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—White House cables reported today President Roosevelt would send a special message to Congress very soon suggesting a new Navy building program, supplemental to the ships provided for in the regular budget.

The cables, including Navy officials and congressional leaders, said the extent of the new program and the types of vessels have not been agreed upon.

One expressed the opinion the program might require new legislation.

Those included in the conference were Charles Edison, assistant secretary of the Navy, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of Naval operations, and congressional leaders.

Edison and Leahy met briefly with the President and then remained for the conference with the congressional leaders.

The latter group included Chairman Taylor (D) of Colorado of the House appropriations committee, Vernon (D) of Georgia, of the House naval committee, and Thomas (D) of North Carolina, of the naval subcommittee of the House appropriations group.

Officials heard their forecast of early order to get along with the supplemental building program on the fact that the House appropriations committee was about to take up the naval appropriation bill.

In a recent letter to Taylor, suggesting regular budget plans for construction of two new battleships and 16 lesser craft, the President said "growing concern" over international conditions might prompt him to ask for even more naval armaments.

The department, which wrote, "reviewed carefully the two reports and studied the President's message on food and drought control planning June 3 referred to, and it appeared possible that the reports might be considered to be inconsistent with the message, and therefore were not submitted."

Schley did not forward the reports to the committee, but devoted two pages of his letter suggesting a "warning."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The War Department, it was disclosed today, has officially admitted that two "missing" army engineers' reports, severely criticized of New Deal regional planning proposals, never were delivered to Congress because they were not in "accordance" with President Roosevelt's program.

Instead, the reports, prepared last June at the request of Senate and House committees considering legislation, were held up after submission to acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, who advised the department there would be "no objection" to a report not "conforming" with the President's recommendations on planning.

SCHLEY REPORT

These disclosures contained in a letter to the House rivers and harbors committee from Major General J. L. Schley, chief of the army engineers, will be published this week as part of the committee's hearings on planning legislation.

Responding to a committee request, Schley said the reports were confined to the North and Pacific bills, which have since been supplanted in administration favor by the less drastic Manhattan bill. The engineers never have reported on the latter measure.

November Jobs Tied 1929 Peak, Says Jordan

Unemployment Board Hears Request for Security Change

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—Employment reached a peak in November which was comparable with 1929 figures, Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, told the Senate unemployment committee today.

At the same time Chairman A. A. Roy of the Social Security Board recommended to the committee that Congress amend the Social Security Act, so that states may pay unemployment benefits more quickly.

Jordan, first witness before the committee at today's session, said his board estimated there were 1,800,000 unemployed in the country in November 1937. He noted that the government's voluntary unemployment census showed an accumulation of 7,800,000 persons, with an estimate that possibly 3,800,000 of all were unemployed.

SENATE AS CUSHION

The youthful, appearing chief of the Social Security board told congressional members that unemployment payments, once they become general, would serve the "cushion" the shock of depression.

"We estimate that if the system had been in effect during the period 1932 through 1933, the total unemployment payments would have ranged from $375,000,000 to $1,200,000,000. However, reserve accumulated would probably not have carried us beyond 1931."

Always said there were limits on the benefits of unemployment insurance, and that unemployment compensation can never be more than a "first aid" to the economy, even when the system is in full operation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—The War Department, it was disclosed today, has officially admitted that two "missing" army engineers' reports, severely criticized of New Deal regional planning proposals, never were delivered to Congress because they were not in "accordance" with President Roosevelt's program.

Instead, the reports, prepared last June at the request of Senate and House committees considering legislation, were held up after submission to acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell, who advised the department there would be "no objection" to a report not "conforming" with the President's recommendations on planning.

SCHLEY REPORT

These disclosures contained in a letter to the House rivers and harbors committee from Major General J. L. Schley, chief of the army engineers, will be published this week as part of the committee's hearings on planning legislation.

Responding to a committee request, Schley said the reports were confined to the North and Pacific bills, which have since been supplanted in administration favor by the less drastic Manhattan bill. The engineers never have reported on the latter measure.

CAMPBELL REVIEW

The department, Schley wrote, "reviewed carefully the two reports and studied the President's message on food and drought control planning June 3 referred to, and it appeared possible that the reports might be considered to be inconsistent with the message, and therefore were not submitted."

Schley did not forward the reports to the committee, but devoted two pages of his letter suggesting a "warning."

Announcement

The price of the Boston Evening American is now three cents.

We believe the Boston Evening American is the GREATEST daily newspaper in New England.

Our loyal friends evidently think so, too, because:

MORE people buy and read the Boston Evening American than any other evening newspaper in New England.

New coats have come to the production of a great newspaper.

Newspaper print went up $1.50 a ton in 1937, and the manufacturers have announced an increase of $7.50 a ton for 1938. The Boston Evening American uses in excess of twenty-five thousand tons of paper annually.

Social insurance, wages, metals, ink, mechanical equipment—the costs of all materials that enter into the production of a newspaper have soared.

Two courses were open.

The Boston Evening American could have reduced its size and its quality, could have reduced its personnel—at a consequent loss to its readers and to its employees.

The other course was to build a bigger and stronger newspaper and MAINTAIN EMPLOYMENT—and this is the course the Boston Evening American has chosen to adopt.

The Boston Evening American cordially and sincerely appreciates the loyal support of the people of New England—and intends to DE-SERVE its continuance.

Side fastener and button front styles in the finest percale or shirt knitted cotton. A dozen or more beautifully designed prints to choose from. Complete size ranges for misses and women 14 to 44. Stock up now for months to come while savings are so generous.

A Mother's Heart Breaks Love Undimmed by His Life Sentence

Not even the nature of the crime and its punishment with prison for life could destroy the love of Mrs. Mary Pimental for her son, Joseph, as she bade him farewell in an ante-room of the Suffolk court where he was sentenced today. In the eyes of court officials as they observed this manifestation of mixed grief and affection so graphically portrayed in this photograph. On the other hand, her son retained the stoicism that marked him throughout the trial—even as life's certain light to reveal a mother's heartbreak.

$1000 Race Fee Asked by Kelly

Recreation of the young and dry racing track daily fee in $1000 for 1938 was urged by Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly today in a communication to Governor Harcourt.

The lieutenant-governor said that Harcourt should instruct the State Racing Commission either to increase the fee to this figure or to add public hearings in the matter. In the same letter, Kelly suggested that the commission should be authorized to make recommendations to the legislature regarding the matter.

"Mr. McDonald is the same man," the letter said, "who came to your protection less than a week ago and, like others, made an unsuccessful attempt to influence and make remedy of the same efforts of the people's lieutenant-governor to obtain lower electric light rates for the public."

Daughter Wins Long Fight to Share Estate

Gertrude Nickerson Held Legal Child of Somerville Woman

Gertrude Nickerson's long fight to establish her true identity was won today in Middlesex Probate Court.

She was legally recognized as the daughter of the late Mrs. Gustaf Ladd, wealthy Somerville widow, and awarded the bulk of the estate left after the widow's death last January.

Judge John C. Leggat's decision, after counsel for the 31-year-old woman and for the estate had agreed on a compromise settlement, terminated a strange and complicated legal situation.

CHARGED KIDNAPING
Miss Nickerson's unique Odyssey began in the late 19th century when she alleged she was kidnaped, lodged in an exclusive Boston nursery where she later adopted by Mr. and Mrs. George Nickerson of Provincetown and raised as their child.

Told of her adoption in later years, she began the long search for her mother. However, according to a statement made in court, she was a search that covered the entire country. A talented musician, she went on the stage and earned her quest during her professional travels.

From the stand she told of how Mrs. Ladd visited her in New York in 1904 and revealed herself as her mother. However, according to the testimony, Mrs. Ladd and her husband Ladd and was unwilling to have him learn she was a daughter.

MOTHER'S LETTERS
She said she entered into an agreement to pose as Mrs. Ladd's niece and had kept the pledge, she produced correspondence from Mrs. Ladd, however, which included letters signed "Mother."

Miss Nickerson was named as the beneficiary of $1000 in her mother's will which left a total estate of $20,000. She contended for a daughter's share through Attorney Bernard Nagler of State street.

Prior to Mr. Ladd's death in 1912, it was revealed in probate court, he and his wife had drawn up separate wills leaving their estate to whomever should survive.

Mrs. Ladd made a new will after her husband's death. In it she named her daughter as "Daisy White" of New York City and left her only $1000.

Judge Leggat today awarded Miss Nickerson the $1000 and the bulk of the estate.

Girl, 12, Back Home In Jamaica Plain

Mary Clark, 12, of Boston Hill street, Jamaica Plain, was safe at home today after a two-day police search on a report that she was missing.

Her mother told police the girl returned, when falling to come home overnight, with the story that she had been visiting friends in Roxbury.

Judge Barron on Boston Bench, Court Packed

Youth Is Restored To Family by New Woman Jurist

The black sheep of a well-to-do Boston family was returned to her proper position by Governor Hurley today. Judge Jennie Laflamme Barron is the first woman to sit in a regular Boston court.

The youth, well-known and well-liked, pleaded guilty to three charges of going into Boston department stores and pilfering small amounts ranging from 60 cents to $1.65.

His comely middle-aged mother went to the bench to plead for him and bring him home. In the dock the prisoner himself wept. Judge Barron gave him a month's suspended sentence.

Judge Barron, recently appointed to her position by Governor Hurley, is the first woman to sit in a regular Boston court.

A number of old-timers, up before the new judge on the old-fashioned score of drunkenness brought out their best attorney—heart-breaking tales that saved them in the past. But Judge Barron was not to be taken in. A number of such offenders were sentenced to the state farm.

Oh, to Be 40 Once More

On reaching his 80th birthday, long a goal, Senator Carter Glass was greeted this by Nancy Carter Boatwright, his niece. Said the venerable statesman: "I'd like to be 40 again."

Deadline Today For Jobless Application

Expect Registration Of 20,000 in 42 Offices

Officials of the Massachusetts Unemployment Commission in Massachusetts said today they expected will persons begin to register for unemployment benefits will have registered by tonight.

At least 20,000, they said, are looking to the 42 registering offices through the state. In the first four days, 10,000 persons are expected.

Applications must be brought in by tonight, the officials said, as a full week in the matter of unemployment. Today's workers will get their first money in three weeks. Those who wait until tomorrow will get only one for four weeks.

Officials estimated thousands who were not eligible had applied. Meanwhile members of the legal department of the state unemployment commission started on a drive to find 15 forms in records of their eligibility may receive payments to 10,000 unemployed men and women in the state.

Records in records are obtained for tonight the 10,000 unemployed will have to wait at least an extra week.

TENSE ACTION AS TRIANGLE FORMS

TWO RIVALS
CLASH—Whit, at left, in his cups, said wrong thing, and Brad Talton, standing, center, finds Jerry O'Donovan, extreme right, in rage, with Sheila, center, who quarrels with O'Donovan over misunderstanding.

BEAUTIFUL SHEILA Heroine of "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly" already has endeared herself to the hundreds of thousands of readers of this serial. Ruth Weidman, in a graceful pose, enacts the role of Sheila Kelly photographically.

PURCHASE BRINGS GOOD FORTUNE TO TIRIO. As the Boston Evening American newsboy cried his wares by the Park street subway kiosk on the Common, Sheila and Brad Talton, just come from Parker House encounter with Jerry O'Donovan, appeared and Brad crowded a bill into the hand of the youngster in payment for the paper which Sheila desired. At the same time, three citizens on the scene fell heirs to $5 each. When the three men indicated in the photograph by circles present themselves at the office of the Boston Evening American, each will be paid $5 for his unwitting appearance in the cast of "When a Cabot Loves a Kelly." Inspect carefully each day the photographs which appear illustrating this serial in the American. At any time you may find a picture of yourself thus circled. A case where your face is your good fortune.

JUST A KISS UNDER PARK. Sheila's refusal to accompany Brad to a dance spot spurred the Harvard man to quick action. He kissed Sheila who dashed into the train. Brad grinned. "Sorry, I couldn't help it!"

Sandow's Hoard | Confident Marshall
Once Had $250,000 | Will Beat George

By JACK CONWAY

BILLY SANDOW, who will come here with Everett Marshall who wrestles Ed Don George in a finish bout at the Garden on Friday night, once used to keep a quarter of a million dollars in gold in a strong box in Chicago so that he would have an air of financial security. When the United States went off the gold standard and called in all gold, Sandow turned in his treasure to the government and took currency in return.

Sandow is one of the shrewdest persons connected with the wrestling game. He has a thorough knowledge of wrestling, is able to teach the game to grapplers appearing under his direction, and possesses the ability to worry the opposition. He is also able to build up box office records by well planned ballyhoo.

Sandow built his personal fortune when he was manager of Strangler Lewis. The Strangler was the Jack Dempsey of wrestling. Lewis at his peak didn't have many dangerous rivals. Physically he was the greatest athlete of his period, and I do not make an exception of Dempsey. Dempsey had the highest admiration for Lewis. He used to pal around with the Strangler when they were both rushing to the heights in sports, and he found Lewis could keep going after everybody else in the party was anxious to call it a day.

The Sandow-Lewis combine earned close to $2,000,000. The Strangler spent most of his end of the spoils in carefree parties, and in adjusting some of his matrimonial difficulties. Lewis, now past 50 years of age, is in India where he is still wrestling.

"I am going to give Whom's coming at Springfield for six weeks," Lewis said in his last made arrangement to get a top class partner. When Lewis the ring with seems to break down in time.

Marshall Has Adopted Lewis' Style

Marshall has adopted the style of Strangler Lewis, who was the greatest athlete of his period, and I do not make an exception of Dempsey. Dempsey had the highest admiration for Lewis. He used to pal around with the Strangler when they were both rushing to the heights in sports, and he found Lewis could keep going after everybody else in the party was anxious to call it a day.

Baseball 'Goats' Falsely Accused

Merkle and Zimmerman Not To Blame in Famous Bonehead Legends

By JOE CASHMAN

Legend and baseball authorities differ widely as to the game's famous bonehead plays and players. In fact, the men who should know justify the "blunders" for which certain players have been ridiculed for years, are rarely mentioned when diamond stupidity is being discussed.

Perhaps the most highly publicized mental lapse in the pastime's history was Fred Merkle forgetting to run all the way to second base and getting forced for the final out of the ninth inning as what should have been the winning run was crossing the plate in a Giants-Cubs clash played 30 years ago.

Perhaps it was the most costly lapse in the pastime's history. That play was called "Merkle's Boner" and it cost the Giants the pennant. The play was called "Merkle's Boner" and it cost the Giants the pennant. The play was called "Merkle's Boner" and it cost the Giants the pennant.

Rule Never Before Enforced by Players

In the final game of the New York Yankees dropped a routine fly which had caught it would have given the Yankees the world's championship.

When Collins Out-Run Zimmerman

The real story of that famous play is that, because he was not sure that the first baseman could catch the ball, he was not sure that the first baseman could catch the ball.

Werber Play Dumbest, Says Eddie Collins

The New York general manager thought the dumbest play he ever saw was Werber's error of leaving the base.

That sort of play when a runner tries to advance a base towards a run he can never score, is what I call dumb baseball, not plays such as Merkle and Zimmerman are criticized for.

McPhail Sought As Arbiter Of Dodgers

Insists on Full Power To Run 'Football' Of National Loop

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, favorite football club of the National League, on off the diamond may be getting ready to kick back.

The all in the uncertain stage and the doubting Thomases will have to be shown before they believe the various apparent interests who share the Dodgers ownership ever can be made to agree, but there no longer any question that something is afoot.

Larry MacPhail, the red-haired lawyer who gained fame by introducing night baseball to the major leagues and helping pull the Cincinnati Reds back on their feet, settled that last night with a statement that revealed several significant points.

SOUGHT BY DODGERS

He said not applied for a job but the Dodgers had sought him out, he said. That was item No. 1. The second was that he believed the conference had not made a mistake toward bringing the various interests together. No. 3 was that MacPhail would consider anything less than full authority to carry out a concrete and adequately financed program for the betterment of the club.

It has been generally understood that the main reason why the Dodgers have continued to turn out second-class ball, even though many apparent effort to save their loyal supporters was the lack of agreement among the owners. President Stephen M. Silverman, the St. Louis Browns and a Brooklyn bank which has several figures in the financial pie, have been unable to make their views coincide for long.

That explains why Dave Stone was named as a star salary for not working and the recent dropping of John Gorman as general manager, which left the Dodgers with no one to arrange a long-range schedule.

WANTS FULL POWER

MacPhail said he would not consider German's job but one who had been by him as a general manager, and that the club owners have no right to interfere with the provision that the various interests recognize their differences, that they agree upon a concrete program to establish the Dodgers as an aggressive competitor in the National League, that they agree to contribute to finance such a program over a reasonable period, and with the further provision that he be given full and complete authority to carry it out.

Although he gave to leave the team today, MacPhail said there may be further conferences.

4 Yanks Make All-Star Team

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5 (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees dominated the 1937 all-star major league baseball team selected at a poll of 24 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America and made public here today by the Sporting News, national baseball weekly.

The Yankees placed four men on the team. Bill Terry, New York Giants, was named on the team. Series last fall, were awarded two players. The St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Detroit Tigers each placed one player.

Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees received the most votes, 240, the next big vote-getter was Joe Medwick of the Cardinals with 227.

Leo Gehrig, slugging Yankee first baseman, was named on the team for the sixth time, and Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, was named for the fifth consecutive year.

The team and the votes received for each position follow:

First base—Lou Gehrig, Yankees (229).

Second base—Charley Gehringer, Tigers (133).

Shortstop—Dick Bartoli, Giants (72).

Third base—Bill Terry, Yankees (81).

Right field—Paul Waner, Pirates (121).

Center field—Joe DiMaggio, Yankees (240).

Catcher—Gabby Hartnett, Cubs (135).

Pitcher—Carl Hubbell, Yankees (147).

American Bowlers Defeat Monitor

The American bowling team defeated the Monitor, team 236 to 144, in a New Year's match at the New Boston alleys last night. The seven American bowlers, including Nazzari 296, O'Brien 287, Capt. Carr 280, Kelly 266, total 1516. Monitor—Crosby 267, McDonald 256, Anderson 227, Capt. Swanson 212, total 1062. This win gives the American a total of 19 points out of a possible 20.

Second wheel, results of other matches:

Record 4—Post 1; Post 2; Globe 2; Post 3; Globe 1; Post 4.
